

SECOND PEACE CONFERENCE ON

International Convention Called By Roosevelt, Opened At The Hague.

SESSION WILL LAST FOUR WEEKS

Forty-Six Nations Have Sent Delegates And All Will Raise Certain Questions And Push Their Own Programs.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
JAPS WILL RAISE NO QUESTION
The Associated Press is authorized to state that the Japanese delegation to The Hague conference has no intention of raising any question relating to the so-called "differences between United States and Japan. All reports to the contrary are pronounced nonsensical.

The Hague, June 15.—The second International Peace Conference, the call for which was issued by President Roosevelt on October 21, 1904, in response to the universal desire of the thinking people of the world that the influence of the first congress held here in 1899 might be strengthened and extended for the general peace, was formally opened this afternoon. During the next four weeks or more the attention of the world will be centered in this gathering of representatives of forty-six nations, the Arcopagus of the civilized powers, assembled to consider the possibility of minimizing the dangers of war incident to the rapid growth of navy and military armaments.

The opening function took place in Knights' Hall which forms a part of the Binnenhof, a medieval pile of buildings in the heart of the city, surrounding the palace built for Count William II. of Holland in the middle of the thirteenth century. The initial session was given over entirely to the exchange of greetings and the work of preliminary organization. M. Nelidoff, the Russian ambassador to France, called the conference to order and made an address extending his sovereign's greetings to the delegates. Dr. Jonkhoe, D. A. Y. van Tets, van Goudria, the Dutch minister of foreign affairs, replied in an address of welcome on behalf of Queen Wilhelmina. The conference then proceeded with the appointment of committees to consider the various subjects inscribed upon the program.

Topics to be Discussed.
With the appointment of these committees it becomes thus of interest to note the topics suggested for discussion. They are as follows:
"Provisions relative to the peaceful settlement of international disputes by court of arbitration and international commissions of inquiry."
"Additions to be made to the provisions relative to the laws and customs of war on land; concerning the opening of hostilities, the rights of neutrals on land, etc."

"Framing a convention relative to the laws and customs of maritime warfare, concerning the rights of neutrals, such as the bombardment of ports, cities and villages by a naval force, the laying of mines and torpedoes, etc."

"The transformation of merchant vessels into warships."

"The protection of the private property of belligerents at sea."

"The length of time to be granted merchant ships for their departure from ports of neutrals or of the enemy after the opening of hostilities."

"The rights and duties of neutrals at sea, among others, the question of contraband, the rules applicable to belligerent vessels in neutral ports, destruction in cases of vis major, neutral merchant vessels captured as prizes."

"Additions to be made to the convention of 1899 for the adaptation to maritime warfare of the principles of the Geneva Red Cross convention of 1864."

The government of the United States has reserved to itself the liberty of submitting to the second conference two additional questions, viz., the reduction or limitation of armament and the attainment of an agreement to observe some limitations upon the use of force for the collection of ordinary public debts arising out of contracts.

The Spanish government has given notice that it attaches great importance to having the question for expenditure for armament discussed at the conference, and has reserved to itself the right of raising it. It has also reserved to itself the right of taking no part in the discussion of any question mentioned in the Russian program which would appear unlikely to produce any useful result.

Japan is of opinion that certain questions that are not especially enumerated in the program might be conveniently included among subjects for consideration, and reserves for itself the right to take no part in or withdraw from any discussion taking or tending to take a trend which, in its judgment, would not be conducive to any useful result.

The governments of Denmark, the Netherlands, Greece and Bolivia have also reserved to themselves, in a general way, the right to submit to the consideration of the conference other subjects similar to those that are explicitly mentioned in the program.

Italy is disposed to widen as much as possible the functions and competence of the arbitration tribunal, and further limit the questions affecting the "honor and vital interests" so much discussed in 1899, which have to be excluded from arbitration.

Question of Permanent Tribunal.
The Argentine proposal, which is to be laid before the conference, looking to the holding of a third international conference in Buenos Ayres, in 1910, will, it is expected, result in bringing the conference face to face with the American proposition to give the conference permanency and provide for periodic gatherings.

A program drawn up by the Inter-parliamentary Union for International Arbitration will be presented by Richard Bartholdt, one of the American delegates. The program, in addition to proposing the permanency of the conference, contains a draft of a model arbitration treaty which provides that concerning a certain number of specified questions arbitration shall be obligatory. In other words, it provides that The Hague Court shall have jurisdiction. These questions are ones of minor importance, which arise from time to time between nations.

Personnel of the Conference.
In order to judge rightly of the possibilities of the conference it is well first to know something of the men taking part.

The president of the Russian delegation is M. A. J. Nelidoff, ambassador to France and one of the most able men in the diplomatic service of the Czar. A more urbane and genial president it would be impossible to find, and it is expected that, with his vast experience and well-known desire for the success of the peace plans of his master, he may succeed in accomplishing at least some of the aims which the leading statesmen of Europe have before them. Next to M. Nelidoff the most prominent member of the Russian delegation is Prof. F. de Martens, foreign minister of the ministry of foreign affairs. Prof. Martens was president of the international tribunal which settled the vexed question of the Venezuelan frontier, and he is regarded as one of the greatest authorities on international law in Europe. M. Nelidoff and Prof. Martens are assisted by M. Tharvloff, the Russian minister at The Hague, M. de Proxor, Russian minister to the Argentine Republic and Brazil; Major General Yemoloff, the military attaché at London.

A CENTRAL CHURCH AND BIG HOSPITAL

Half Million Dollar Institution Proposed For Atlanta—Subscription Meeting Sunday.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Atlanta, Ga., June 15.—The project for the erection of a half-million dollar Memorial church in Atlanta is expected to receive a great impetus tomorrow when a mass meeting will be held to take definite steps in the matter. The meeting will be attended by six or seven bishops, among them Galloway of Mississippi, Candier of Georgia, Hendrix of Missouri, Atkins of South Carolina and Morrison of Alabama. The Wesley Memorial enterprise is one of the largest undertakings in the history of Southern Methodism. It contemplates a great central church, a splendid hospital and accommodations for every branch of a great institutional church work. The enterprise is in honor of the memory of John Wesley, the great founder of the faith, who visited Georgia more than a century ago.

"Rhode Island" Receives Handsome Offering From State—Elaborate Presentation Ceremonies.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Newport, R. I., June 15.—With imposing ceremonies on board the battleship Rhode Island this afternoon Governor Hodge and a delegation of prominent citizens of this state, presented to the officers of the warship a magnificent bronze plaque and a splendid service of solid silver. The bronze plaque was presented first, the presentation speech being made by Gov. Hodge and the speech of acceptance by Captain Bowman of the warship. The presentation of the silver service then took place, ex-Senator Wolcott making the donation speech. After the ceremonies were concluded the guests were entertained at luncheon by the ship's officers. The silver service cost $8,500 and is pronounced one of the finest ever turned out in America. The largest single piece is an immense punch bowl, capable of holding five gallons. Portraits of four of Rhode Island's greatest naval heroes, Oliver Hazard Perry, Essek Hopkins, Matthew Galbraith Perry, and Abraham Whipple, are shown on the bowl. Each piece also shows the state seal, the state flower and other symbols of Rhode Island.

ONE BODY FOUND IN THE SUNKEN LAUNCH

Remains of Fireman Is Brought up with Minnesota's Boat at Hampton Roads.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, D. C., June 15.—Secretary Metcalf, this morning, received a long distance telephone message from Admiral Berry, commanding the Norfolk navy yards, saying the Minnesota's launch had been raised to the surface and the body of one fireman was found. A search for the other bodies has continued.

Definite News.
Old Point Comfort, Va., June 15.—The body of George W. Westphal, of the first class and a fireman was in the Minnesota's launch when she was raised to the surface, there is no trace of the ten other men or anything to show that they were aboard when the boat went down. The launch looks badly wrecked. There is no longer any doubt it was sunk by some other vessel.

SHERIFF GONE FOR FEROCIOUS LUNATIC

First Visit: Fruitless and on Second Is Accompanied by Under-Sheriff and Deputy.

In response to a telephone message from Hanover this morning Sheriff U. C. Fisher went thither to arrest Hurley Haight, alleged to be violently insane. He found the man hiding in a feed shoot in the barn and barricaded against would-be capturers. This afternoon he again went to Hanover, was accompanied by Under-Sheriff Appleby and Deputy Sheriff Horatio Nelson. The posse took arms and ammunition and carpenters' tools in anticipation of having to cut their way to the man, possibly having a fight. Haight was sent to the Mendota Asylum last January but was later released as cured.

COURT ADMITTED ADAMS TELEGRAM

In Evidence at the Boise Murder Trial Today—Concerned an Appeal to Haywood for Money.

Boise, Idaho, June 15.—The prosecution in the Steubenberg murder case won its fight for admission of the contents of a telegram from Steve Adams, sent from Ogden to the defendant Haywood at Denver in June, 1903, and Detective Pender was permitted to testify to its contents this morning. The message was an appeal from Adams to Haywood for money.

The state then produced and secured the admission of six drafts sent by Haywood to Jack Simpkins. The purpose was to show the relations between Haywood and Simpkins, who aided Orchard in the first attempt to kill Gov. Steubenberg. The state next produced fragments of a pistol device by which an internal machine placed in the Vindicator mine was set off, and this led to a general digression into the whole story of the Cripple Creek strike.

ALUMNI BANQUET WELL ATTENDED

NEARLY TWO HUNDRED AT FESTIVAL BOARD LAST EVENING.

GRADUATES HONORED GUESTS

Excellent Supper Prepared and Served Under Direction of Cora Soverrill and Committee.

With a banquet, program and social session in the auditorium of the school building the Janesville High School Alumni association last evening celebrated another anniversary of their organization and the accession of fifty-one new members, the present year graduates. Members of the 1907 class were the guests of honor and they were cordially received into the association. At seven o'clock nearly a hundred and fifty alumni formed a dual line on the stairs and in the hall leading to the auditorium and a half hundred graduates marched up the center, receiving rounds of applause.

Decorations Very Pretty
The company was seated about three long tables arranged in a triangle, the graduates occupying the interior. Bridal wreath, tulips and other flowers in vases and sprays of foliage bedecked the board. In the corners of the hall were settees covered with sofa pillows and the room presented a pretty and inviting appearance. This decorating work was in charge of Miss Grace Spoon and she was ably assisted by Miss Katherine Crowley, Walter Carle and Lester Strang. At each plate was a program, rolled like a diploma and bearing a gold seal, hung with red ribbon, the colors of 1907.

Juniors Served Supper
A hearty two-course supper was served. This had been prepared under the direction of Miss Cora Soverrill. She arranged the menu and supervised in the kitchen, when the feast was in preparation. No end credit is due her and her assistants—Miss Abbie Atwood, Harry Jones, Miss Clara Lacey, Miss Lucy Granger, Starr Atwood, Miss Cora Holt, Miss Ann De Forest and Miss Margaret Samuels. The banquet was served by members of the Junior class secured by Miss Lucy Granger, Miss Anna K. Smith and George Sennett. The waiters were the Misses Charlotte Charlton, Irma Zickler, Mame Langdon, Lalla Soverhill, Edith Soverhill, Marguerite Fifeild, Irma Shoemaker, Florence Spooner, Wilma Jones and Effie Jones and the Messrs. John Nuzum, Leo Aspinwall, Elsworth Strang, Leo Atwood, Perry Strang, Stewart Richards, Vincent Koch, Floyd Bennison, Roy Crissey and Roger Cunningham.

Short, Spicy Program
After the tables had been cleared a short, spicy program was offered. Clarence Van Bynum, president of the association, presiding as toastmaster and extending in a few brief remarks the welcome. William Spin, president of the graduating class, responded with an appreciative "thank you" brightened with clever repartee. Speaking on the subject of "Progression," Frank O. Holt complied with the request of the program committee not to say anything of weight and gave a very witty and humorous toast on nothing. Miss Lucy Alkin delivered a reading, entitled "From a Far Country," and the offering was most thoroughly enjoyed by all. A piano solo was rendered by Roy Carter and he was compelled to answer the applause that followed with an encore. John Arbuthnot of the high school faculty responded to the subject of "That Reminds Me" and by a series of stories and anecdotes lined together with original wit kept the entire assemblage in laughter. The program closed with the 1907 class singing their commencement song under the leadership of its author, Miss Mary V. McGinley and with the piano accompaniment played by Miss Louise Bennett.

Pleasant Social Session
At the conclusion of the song there was a social session which lasted until after eleven o'clock. Roy Carter furnishing music during that time. Those present seemed pleased with the event and much of its success is due to the work of Vice-President Walter Carle, Secretary Del. Millmore and Treasurer Fred Palmer.

Arne Lerum, of the state board of control office, was in Janesville yesterday, the guest of Harvey Clark at the institute for the blind.

JANESVILLE MEN IN GOLD MINE REGION

Accompanying Picture Shows Local Stockholders Inspecting Holdings in Colorado.

Captain B. F. Moore, William Buggs, Albert Teubert and Ray Podewell are stockholders in the Prudential and Montgomery Ward Mining companies, which have holdings at Georgetown, Colo. These four men recently visited Georgetown and inspected the property in which they are interested. The accompanying picture shows the quartet with others at the mouth of the Prudential tunnel, which runs into Republican Mountain. Captain Moore is prominent, being in the foreground on the right. The scene presented is typical of the grade mining regions of the West. It lies at the edge of Georgetown, a city in the heart of the Rocky Mountains, fifty miles from Denver.

LEAVE COMPETITION IN TELEPHONE FIELD

Independent Companies Win After Long Fight—Substitute Bill Killed By Legislature.

Madison, Wis., June 15.—The independent telephone companies of the state won their fight for an open competitive field in Wisconsin, when the assembly by a vote of 51 to 19, killed the bill containing a provision preventing installation of a second telephone plant in cities where there is already one telephone plant in operation, and also containing a provision compelling physical connection between the plants of competing companies.

It was one of the most stubborn fights of the session, and has been in progress since the earliest conception of the public utility bill. The original public utility bill contained a provision preventing and compelling physical connection. After full hearings, the amended public utility bill, omitting these two features. Then when it came onto the floor of the assembly for passage, an effort was made by Assemblyman Bancroft to amend the public utility bill to include the non-duplication feature. He withdrew his amendment after a sort of indefinite agreement with some of the members that his proposition would be included in the physical connection bill which was to be reported out later as a separate proposition. Such a bill was prepared as a substitute for the original Coolidge physical connection bill by the committee on transportation, but was reported out without recommendation. It was this substitute which was overwhelmingly defeated in the assembly this morning.

Ingram Speaks for Competition
C. A. Ingram, chairman of the judiciary committee, led the fight against the proposed legislation, contending that it would work a hardship upon the independent telephone lines and place them at the mercy of the telephone trust. He was in favor of allowing the independent telephone business a large amount of freedom in developing, so they could compete with the trust and prevent monopoly.

Ekern for Physical Connections.
Messrs. Cleary and Ekern urged the adoption of the amendment, contending that the passage of a compulsory physical connection bill would more adequately protect the interests of the independent lines than an absence of such a law would. Mr. Cleary made a plea for the railroad rate commission, which, he said, was thoroughly competent to take care of the matter and adjust difficulties fairly and to the interest of the public. Ekern denied that the fight on the bill was a fight between different telephone interests, and must not be viewed in that light.

Mr. Ingram in reply declared that the Bell company was now heartily in favor of the physical connection bill which in the past it has opposed such legislation and argued that it was merely a desire on their part to gain a monopoly that prompted this change of front.
A. S. Baker also so construed the Bell company's change of front.
Mr. Reynolds was in favor of letting the law alone until next session.
Mr. Cleary argued that there was greater danger of extortion on the part of the trust against the independents without the law than there is with it, but the amendment was put and voted down, 51 to 19. This was the practical test vote, and the bill was killed without further delay.

Long Contest on Measure.
When the public utilities bill was originally drafted it contained all the provisions with reference to the telephone companies that it contained with reference to the other utilities embraced in that bill. After full hearings the joint committee on transportation of the two bodies having that bill under consideration, exempted the telephone companies from that provision of the utilities bill which prevented the extension of independent telephone lines, leaving the telephone companies, however, subject to all the other regulations and provisions of the bill including rate regulation, character of service, detailed accounting and full statement of cost of construction, operation and maintenance and all the other provisions of the measure.

At the time the utilities bill was passed in the assembly, Mr. Bancroft offered an amendment to include telephones in the anti-duplication or monopoly features of the bill. After some discussion he withdrew his amendment and stated that he would offer it as an amendment to the so-called compulsory connection bill—502a—then pending in the committee. A hearing was had on the compulsory bill, at which time a substitute including the monopoly features above referred to, the passage of which was urged by the Wisconsin Bell Telephone company, was proposed and the assembly committee on transportation reported that measure to the assembly without recommendation and the bill went on the calendar for today. When it came up for consideration Assemblyman Ingram moved indefinitely to postpone consideration of the bill, which brought on probably the sharpest fight of the session, participated in by Speaker Ekern and Assemblymen Cleary, Bancroft, and others for the bill, and Assemblymen Ingram, Baker, Peterson, Norcross, Miller, Cernahan, Olsen and others against the bill. Upon the vote being taken the ayes and nays were called, resulting in 51 for indefinite postponement to 19 against it. Assemblyman Stout, being the only member of the committee who voted for the measure, all the others present voting against it.

This leaves the telephone business in Wisconsin open to competitive extensions, but subject to all the other provisions for state regulation and control that are embraced in the utilities bill as to water, gas, power and heating companies, and placing the same under the state railroad commission. The bill gives the railroad commission the right to regulate rates, prevent discrimination, compel extension of service and generally to supervise and control the same. It is said that the Wisconsin Telephone company will make an effort to amend the utilities bill in the senate to embrace the same provisions, but the independents think that after the long and thorough discussion such an effort cannot prevail.

Bell Company's Change of Front.
About six weeks ago when the compulsory connection measure was under consideration by the committee, the Wisconsin Telephone company, together with some of its sub-licensees, appeared before the committee and vigorously opposed that measure upon the ground that compulsory interconnection of business was wholly impracticable and could only result in inextricable confusion and impairment of the service. At that time the committee had not changed the utilities bill and it contained the monopoly feature as to telephone. Afterward, when the utilities bill was re-drafted and that provision omitted, the Wisconsin Telephone company and its sub-licensees, who had appeared against the compulsory connection measure, changed front and began to urge the enactment of the bill which was defeated today.

It was claimed by the independent telephone people that the Bell company was willing to sacrifice service, according to its statements of a few weeks ago, in order to secure a monopoly.
Time to Stop Competition Not Yet Reached.
The assembly, while not receding from the position that one utility or any kind is preferable to two, when that one utility has developed sufficiently to meet the requirements of the public, yet declaring that the telephone development in Wisconsin is less than one-half as much, for a given unit of population and resources, as it is in adjoining states, and that the passage of this bill would prevent extension of independent lines, refused to create a monopoly in the telephone business on the ground that it would retard extensions. It preferred to leave the field open for the two interests, the independent and the Bell, to extend the service throughout the state until the public requirements are satisfied.

The contest in Milwaukee and in numerous other places in the state, the independent men say, will now be taken up and prosecuted to completion, and the independent telephone people, enabled to realize their hopes for long distance connection and the development of communities not now occupied by independent properties. They say that this development will not stop with the larger cities and towns, but will be extended into the rural villages and districts as it has been in Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Minnesota, in fact all the country between the Rocky mountains and the Hudson river. The independents say they were the originators of the so-called farmer-lines or rural exchanges, and being locally owned, are in an impracticable position and have installed within the past twelve years more than 4,000,000 telephones in the United States, while the Bell companies, they say, have in thirty years installed 3,200,000. They claim there is only one telephone to each twenty persons in Wisconsin, while in the adjacent states there is one telephone to each nine persons. The independents say that they are now looking forward to the time when Wisconsin telephone development will be as great in proportion as that of other sister states.

Great discourse, full of pathetic incidents and stirring appeal was heard last night by the largest crowd yet assembled at the revival.

The opening service of prayer and song was full of inspiration. Mr. De Loss Smith was at his best as leader of the large chorus choir, and Mr. Jesse Van Camp was on the platform for the first time last night and together they sang "Meet Mother in the Skies" and "Ye Also Ready," with powerful effect.

Mr. De Loss Smith played and sang "A Mother's Appeal to Her Boy."

Mr. Scoville announced that he had his stereopticon with him and will use it some time in the near future, giving some of the views which he gathered while traveling in the Holy Land.
Dr. Scoville took for his text last night Isaiah 66:13: "As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you."

Jesus said go ye and preach the Gospel; that "ye" means you. It is easy to sing "Rescue the Perishing" in a parlor, but it is another thing to go down and reach out a hand to those low down in sin. No sweeter words than "mother, home, and heaven."

Byron said "his mother was a fool," and judging from her son she might have been. Garfield's mother was a woman of prayer. When he was a boy he heard her pray that he might come to God early in life and be a blessing, and Garfield believed in his mother's prayer and tried to answer it.

Sam. Jones, the great evangelist, once related a beautiful parable of the angel who was ordered to bring three of the most beautiful things in the world to the throne of grace. He began his search and the first thing he found was a rose, the second a smile or a baby's face. After further search he found a mother bending over her child and he said, "what is more beautiful than a mother's love?"

But when he appeared with those three, behold, the rose had faded, the baby's smile had changed to the sterner look of the man, but the mother's love was more beautiful and stronger in heaven than on earth.

Postmortem kindness is too late. Don't wait until your mother is dead before you send her flowers. If you have a mother to write to, write to her now. If we owe much to our mothers, how much more we owe to God with his great mother love and kindness toward us.

No one uses his mother's name when he swears. What does he swear for anyway? When a man stole a horse he had something to show, but when he swore what had he gained?
If the Saviors does not get our boys and girls, Satan will. "Suffer the little children to come unto Me and forbid them not."

We are doing the greatest service for the Master when we are taking care of the boys and girls. Horace Bushnell said a child's character is more than half formed when he is three years of age. A stirring appeal was here made for parents to train the boys and girls for Christ.
A mass meeting will be held in the rink for men only on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. This will be a great service. All men are invited. The singing will be a great inspiration, and Dr. Scoville, who has had marked success in such meetings, will have something helpful for all classes of men.

Janesville, Wis., June 10, 1907.
Whereas, it has pleased the Almighty God to call from our midst our Sister Forester, Margaret Buckley of St. Patrick's Court, No. 315, W. C. O. P., of Janesville, Wis.: We appreciate the beautiful example she has given us in her laborious industry, her cheerful endurance of her life's trials, and especially her patience in her last suffering. She was a sincere and valued friend and charter member and had endeared herself to all the members by her loving and amiable character. That the Court extend our heartfelt sympathy to her stricken Sisters in this great sorrow that has come to them and commend them for comfort and solace to Him who doeth all things well. And we pray God to comfort them in their sorrow.

Resolved, That this expression of sympathy be spread upon the records of this Court, that copies of the same be presented to the bereaved family and a copy published in the Women's Catholic Register and our charter be draped for thirty days.

ANOTHER SPECIAL MEETING OF BOARD

School Commissioners Threshed Out Minor Points Regarding Remodeling Jefferson Building.

Another special meeting of the Janesville board of education to discuss the plans for remodeling the Jefferson building in the third ward was held in the high school building last evening. Architect Chandler of Racine was here and read over his specifications for the plans recently approved by the board. Minor points in regard to these were thoroughly discussed, the commissioners being in session from 7:30 till 11:00. Next Monday evening the board will put the matter up to the council.

FIRST MEETING OF HOUSEHOLD CLUB

The Picnic Gathering Was Held at Home of Mrs. Cory on Friday.

The first meeting of the Summer Club of Household Economics was held in Footville June 14 at the beautiful and commodious home of Mr. and Mrs. Cory. A large attendance was the result of an ideal day. One hundred and forty-six ladies were seated at long tables on the lawn for the usual picnic dinner. The menu was in charge of Mrs. Paul. Mrs. John Dower, demonstrator, told how to make that excellent southern dish, Spanish rice. The business meeting was called to order by the new president, Mrs. Geo. Osgood, when Mrs. Whitney Fisher read a report of the morning session of the fifth annual convention of the first district federation held in Janesville last April. Mrs. James Mills followed with report of afternoon and evening sessions. Miss Matilda Bailey, recording secretary, read financial statement of the expenditure of the club incurred by said convention. Mrs. Mae Smiley read a paper on "The House, Its Plans, Decoration and Care." Mrs. Gardner, "Household Hygiene"; Mrs. Conroy, "Textiles and Clothing"; Mrs. Hough, "Oriental Rugs"; Mrs. Richardson and Mrs. Colony of Evansville, who were guests of the club, being called on, city with a membership of twenty. Mrs. club had been formed in their sister with a membership of twenty. Mrs. Colony made a few remarks along the same line. The local club now has a limited membership of 170 with a waiting list of 25. Their motto is: "Lend a helping hand when you can."

Dooley-Charley:
On Wednesday, June 12, occurred the marriage of Mrs. Mary Murry Dooley and Mr. Joseph Nelson Charley of West Magnolia. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Michel Murray and a young woman much thought of in her locality. Mr. Charley is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. John Charley and is a prosperous young farmer. They returned on the evening train to Footville, where they were met by numerous friends and relatives. Congratulations being showered, they were driven to the home of the bride's mother, where a bountiful banquet was awaiting them. Mr. and Mrs. Charley left Thursday for an extended trip through the south. After July 1 they will be at home on a large farm in Magnolia, a gift of the groom's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Charley have the best wishes of their host of friends.

What It Takes To Make a Good Lightning Rod

The capacity of a conductor depends on the extent of its surface. The Savant La Monner proved that the capacity of a conductor depends upon the surface and not on the solid contents.

An anvil weighing 200 pounds gave a smaller spark than a speaking trumpet weighing ten pounds. A solid ball of lead gave a spark no stronger than that obtained from a piece of lead foil of the same surface. Finally he obtained a strong spark from a long strip of sheet lead, but a very small one when it was rolled into a lump.

Gray, Franklin, and others conducted experiments pointing to the conclusion that electrical distribution in conducting bodies depends merely on the extent of the bounding surface.

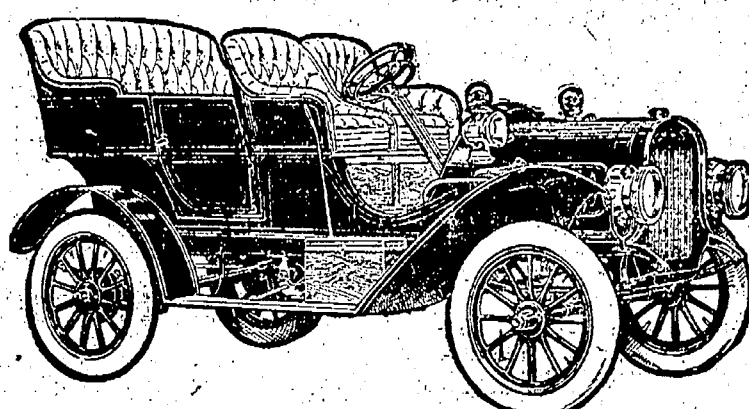

And by the insertion of the helix or spiral core in the center of our cable affording an even exterior and producing the largest amount of surface possible to obtain.

MURDER BY THE INDIANS

A Mail Coach Attacked on the Plains—Wholesale Slaughter.

On Monday evening the postoffice employees were greatly surprised at the arrival of the overland mail from California and the Pacific Coast and Territories, in a box covered with blood. The marks on this box showed that it had been violently broken open. Both the exterior of the box and the letters it contained were smeared with gore. This discovery created considerable sensation at the post office, and many were the surmises expressed as to the manner in which the box and its contents had become covered with the blood of a human being. It was finally believed that the coach which conveyed the mail across the plains must have been attacked by Indians, and that some of the mail escort must have been killed or severely wounded in its defense.

This belief received confirmation on Tuesday, when, in overhauling the mail a letter was seen addressed to Lorenzo Thomas, Adjutant General of the United States Army. The letter was enclosed in a large official envelope and bore the endorsement of an Assistant Adjutant General. On the outside of the envelope was written the following, which was undoubtedly intended for the person to whom the envelope was addressed.

Wisconsin Rancho, Colorado, June 2, 1867.

The coach carrying this mail was attacked two miles above this place and everybody killed, and the mail scattered all over the ground, and covered with blood. I took six men and hauled the coach down here, and put all the letters in a sack. This morning four men started with the coach, when the Indians drove them back again, killing one man. The Indians were fighting a train of sixty wagons all day the 1st and 2d, and are still fighting. In the last week the Indians have attacked twelve ranches, and plenty of them are in the country yet. Of course they are tame Indians. I think a few more Colonel Chivingtons would be a good thing. Give my best respects to all your peace men.

(Signed) —

These lines were signed by the writer's name, but the position held by him is not stated. They were probably written by some station keeper. There is scarcely a doubt but that the blood seen on the box and its contents was shed on the first of this month during the fight with the Indians referred to in this note.

Imitation Pearls.

Imitation pearls are plentiful and look so like the real thing that they deceive experts. They are made by means of a transparent glass shell, a little glue, and some essence of the orient, a silvery, pearly substance, composed of fine scales rubbed from a small fish called the "bleak" or the "abete," 17,000 of which require rubbing to get a pound.

Dinner Talk.

Nowadays a dinner party never passes without allusions to clutches, sparking plugs, and the merits of four or six cylinders. Indeed, to be a good conversationalist to-day one wants to be as an fait with motoring as one has to about golf or bridge.—London Bystander.

Gund's Peerless Beer

is America's favorite family beer, because it contains nothing but the pure essence of barley and hops. It has been conscientiously brewed for half a century by the celebrated "Gund Natural Process"—a process that retains to a most wonderful degree the fine flavor and life principles of the rich grain and the imported hops. In fact it is "a liquid bread" of high food value—a digestive and thirst quencher.

Prof. Dr. P. Bauer, Berlin, Germany says: "The water in beer quenches the thirst, the carbonic acid refreshes, the extracts are nutritious, the alcohol (3%) furthers digestion, the mineral salts build up the bones and the extracts of hops act as a tonic."

Fearless—Bottled only at the brewery and has always been a beer of commanding superiority. Ask for it if you would have the best going. Sold everywhere. A fine home beer. Order a trial case delivered this very day. Delicious, invigorating, sparkling, snappy.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT

The testimony of Harry Orchard, in the Haywood trial, has been a revelation to the entire country. That a man convicted of as diabolical a murder as was ever committed, should stand before an intelligent jury and make a string of confessions covering a period of 15 years is as startling as it is peculiar.

The effort of the defense to break down this testimony will be futile, for it bears the stamp of sincerity and comes from a man who is looking death in the face.

When the President said that Haywood and Moyer were dangerous citizens, he was severely criticized, and many labor organizations accused him of an attempt to prejudice public opinion in advance of the trial.

Today conditions have changed, and no self-respecting American citizen has a word to offer in defense of the plotters who for years are accused of infesting the mining regions of Idaho and the coast states.

If the confession made by Harry Orchard is true, no band of anarchists ever existed in any country, more dangerous to public welfare, than the band now on trial in the Idaho court.

The explosion of a mine means the confiscation of property, and murder for money makes a price on human life which makes existence seem cheap and uncertain.

Politics may be mixed up in the situation and there may have been more or less of intrigue and deception, but there was no excuse for red-handed murder, and the verdict of public opinion will be a unit on this proposition.

Harry Orchard was a New Hampshire boy, and Moyer and Haywood are full-fledged American citizens, who have long enjoyed the protection and opportunities of the best government ever created.

These men, like the notorious Chicago, who made himself famous in the Debs case, are the products of American soil, and in spite of the free air of this free land, have become contaminated with the seeds of discontent and anarchy.

The question which should interest us today, more than any other, is, What are the weaknesses of our national life which cause or even permit the development of this spirit, which is more widespread than ever before?

The President, in attempting to solve this question, is impressed with the notion that an income tax would do much to regulate it, and in his Janesville speech, a few days ago, argued strongly in favor of this kind of a tax.

If his plan should be adopted it would put into the public treasury many millions of money for the benefit of all the people, and to this extent would amount to the distribution of property so much discussed in socialist circles.

He also favors a revision of the tariff, on the ground that many industries are overprotected. This feeling is shared by a liberal element in the republican party, and is intensified by the fact that combines and trusts control the output of many lines of goods.

The drygoods men complain that forty manufacturers, in a combine, produce and control 85 per cent of the output of woolen suitings, while the thread industry is in the hands of a few men who manipulate it at pleasure.

They say that certain lines of cotton fabrics are handled in the same way, and that production is restricted to such an extent that supplies are never equal to the demand and prices are constantly advancing, while fabulous dividends are paid every year.

What is true of the drygoods trade, is doubtless true of every other line, for the tendency of the age is towards concentration, and the day of "infant industries" is largely a thing of the past.

It will be remembered when the Dingley bill was passed, after much discussion, and became a law, that people said generally, "Now what we want is an opportunity to try it for ten years without tinkering or molesting."

The ten years have passed, and it has been the greatest era of prosperity that the country has ever known.

This is largely due to the fact of confidence inspired by a policy of stability. Factories have been built, and money freely invested because of this fact.

It may be time to call a halt and revolutionize things in an effort to correct abuses which have developed as the result of too much prosperity.

A radical modification of the tariff would, of course, mean an influx of foreign-made goods, putting in competition the half-paid labor of the old world. It would doubtless regulate many American factories by putting them out of business, as it did during Cleveland's second administration. This would regulate the evil, so far as high prices are concerned, but it would prove a hardship to American labor, and result in enforced idleness.

This might prove a blessing, rather than a calamity, for in this rapid-paced age, organized labor has become as arbitrary as combined capital. There is a scarcity of men, especially skilled men, in almost every department of work, and this is largely due to the fact that only a limited number of boys are permitted to learn a trade.

The same spirit that restricts the output of goods, restricts the output of mechanics, and so the supply never equals the demand.

A Janesville boy, who had worked for a number of years as a plumber's helper, at low wages, recently went to the coast to better his condition. He joined a union and went to work at $5.50 per day, but after a couple of days was ordered out on a strike to secure an advance of a dollar a day.

The pressmen of St. Louis were working for $3.75 a day. They demanded an advance to $6.00 and the offices closed until a compromise was effected.

Thus it goes all along the line. Combinations of both capital and labor are arbitrary and as a result many enterprises are abandoned.

There is no law that can regulate these great forces except the law of supply and demand, and the evils attending will not be controlled until by natural causes they regulate themselves.

An income tax may confiscate a certain class of property, and tariff revision may force into retirement capital interested. These would hasten the revolution which seems necessary to restore an era of common sense.

There is only one thing that will permanently cure existing evils, and that is a broader and more tolerant spirit, and if this sort of reform is ever established it will mean a reformation of the heart.

The brotherhood of many is all right in theory, but a most difficult relationship to establish. The spirit of envy is a prevailing spirit, and as natural to the human heart as the breath of life.

In aggravated form it leads to murder and all sorts of crime, and in everyday attire it fills the life with hatred and bitterness.

This spirit of envy is more or less dormant when times are hard and everybody in the race is a fierce struggle for existence, but in prosperous times, like the present, it is the controlling spirit.

The men who toil with their hands find it easy to believe that capital is oppressive, and that they are not receiving their share of the profits. The man who lives in a modest house on a moderate salary, envies his neighbor, in the mansion across the way, and attempts to keep pace with the procession.

In the register's office in Chicago is a stack of mortgages a foot thick, representing security for automobiles on homes which was the only property possessed by the owners. These are evidences of a desire to travel up near the front regardless of consequences.

The people generally have come to believe that they are downtrodden and oppressed and so all sorts of extreme measures are adopted in an attempt to regulate what is largely an imaginary evil.

Before the Idaho trial closes it will be found that combinations of capital as well as labor, are largely responsible for conditions, and that back of it all is this same spirit of envy, as old as the race, and always a disturber.

When the heart is right and man is at peace with his God and himself, he finds it easy to be at peace with his neighbor, and where these conditions exist there is neither strife nor turmoil.

The papers of Indiana are having a busy time defending their pet candidate, Fairbanks, against an attack recently made by Collier's. The result will be a good deal of free advertising for the magazine, Fairbanks will never be president, but his defeat will not be due to opposition on the part of the "National Weekly." People who take Collier's, take it for indignation, and dyspeptics are largely in the minority.

The good roads movement is entitled to every encouragement. The county is fortunate in having the aid and advice of Mr. Lancaster, for he represents, the national government, and is an intelligent worker.

Taft made a good impression in the state, and if nature is permitted to take its course, the Wisconsin delegation will be lined up close to the front of the big secretary's column.

PRESS COMMENT.

Many Mourn: Many Rejoice.

Marquette Eagle-Star: The long vacation begins this week, much to the despair of many mothers and the delight of more children.

Then Quit for Mercy's Sake.

Evening Wisconsin: Is it the projected session of the Wisconsin legislature that keeps the summer of 1907 from coming in?

Where Angels Dare to Tread.

Rockford Register-Gazette: After calling President Roosevelt a powder mill, President Angel of the Humane society foolishly proceeds to strike a match in the immediately vicinity.

Favor Would Be Too Costly.

Oshkosh Northwestern: The republicans of this state cannot afford to make a misuse in designating their preference for the presidential nomination next year—not even to "please a friend."

Big Enough, at That.

Sheboygan Journal: J. Ogden Armour has got control of the Chicago tunnel system. Mr. Armour is looking for a hole to crawl into when the next beef trust prosecution starts.

The Boom! The Boom!

Neenah Times: Hark! What's that! It can't be that the celebration is already on and the Fourth will twenty days away! Ah, gwan! That's the La Follette boom.

A Scrapper His Ideal.

Racine Journal: Mr. Lenroot offers the thought that if Secretary Taft will not war to the knife against Senator Foraker, he is an unworthy man to be a presidential candidate. But then this is Lenroot's idea.

Want the Stunt Tackled.

Superior Telegram: "Lots of old folk want Roosevelt to go to the United States senate because of a desire to see him tackle a stunt never yet successfully pulled off—making that body take advice—and pretend to like it."

"Scaring" Antics Amuse.

Milwaukee Sentinel: Even if the Japanese politicians who are doing the loud talking are sincere, which the facts indicate they are not, they will find "scaring" the United States a very different proposition from bluffing Korea.

Too Much for Imagination.

Milwaukee News: And supposing—just supposing—that Uncle Ike should succeed in making La Follette president, what a fine opportunity it would offer to fight the people's battles with the government expenditures approximating a billion dollars a year. The greater area, indeed, is alluring.

Which Is Today.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Now that we have passed the reactionary storm period, promised by Weather Prophet Hicks for the ninth, tenth and eleventh of this month, perhaps we may expect a few days of nice weather before the next disturbance is due to arrive, which is on the fifteenth.

Monthly Fairs—Good Suggestion.

Green Bay Gazette: Manitowoc merchants, alive to promoting and bettering their interests, have taken up a proposition to conduct monthly fairs in the hope of stimulating trade. The plan, if successful, would probably point the way for similar actions on the part of merchants of other cities in the state.

Admires His Audacity.

Exchange: The Green Bay Gazette is in favor of having the state delegation to the republican national convention next year instructed for La Follette, because "he is the one man in the state whose ambition soars so high." The Gazette evidently believes in being accommodating in such matters.

Bad for a "Favorite Son."

Bay Claire Leader: For the time being at least Big Bill Taft appears to have stepped into Wisconsin and out again, and to have damaged the hopes of our own favorite sons. The Milwaukee Journal apparently has gone clean over, but whether its endorsement of the Ohioan is a help or not remains to be seen. It is now up to the Milwaukee Free Press.

No Real Danger of War.

Exchange: As for any danger of real war between the two nations the best authorities on both sides agree it is outside of serious consideration. The talk of war in Japan is apparently confined to a comparatively few of the so-called jingo class, a class with which we ourselves have had some experience. The real leaders of both nations appreciate the vital necessity and mutual advantage of continuance of the same friendly relations that have existed in the past, and the people generally, both in Japan and America, evidently have the same feelings about it.

Neighborly Encouragement.

Milton Journal: F. O. Ambrose of Jefferson will move his boiler factory to Janesville. He has been seeking better shipping facilities some time.

Milton Junction, recently entertained a proposition to organize a stock company and move the factory to that place. The amount of stock to be carried by local people was $2000. They were unable to raise it, and the factory will go to Janesville. This will add several families to Janesville this season, and as the business grows the city will be benefited. The county seat shows an inclination to grow. The building of the large North-Western yards there, on which work has already commenced, will be a great thing and will add to the population. It is expected also that an automobile factory will be located there this season.

son. Janesville has the location, the shipping facilities, the power. If the businessmen will pull together the city which was at one time larger than Rockford may yet become a large manufacturing center and add much to the wealth and prosperity of the county.

ENGINEER JOHN FALTER
LOST ENDS OF TWO DIGITS
IN UNLOADING MONUMENT

Accident Happened at Monroe Yesterday When 22-Ton Stone Was Being Handled.

In helping unload a twenty-two-ton granite monument at Monroe yesterday afternoon John Falter of this city, an engineer in the employ of the C. & N. W. railway company, lost the ends of two fingers. Particulars of the accident could not be verified, but it was reported that his hand was caught under the edge of the huge stone as it was being taken from the car. The monument was from the shop of George Presse of this city.

Y. M. C. A. LEAGUE
SERIES AT AN END

"Cubs" by Defeat of "Nationals" This Morning Won Beautiful Baseball Championship Pennant.

With the defeat of the "Cubs" by the "Nationals" to the tune of 3 to 6 this morning, the Junior Y. M. C. A. baseball league series came to an end, and the beautiful six-foot, blue silk pennant, bearing in white letters the monogram of the organization and the words "Baseball Championship" was awarded to the victorious "Cubs."

A picture of the entire league of three teams as well as another of the victors will be taken and placed over the pennant in the parlors of the Association building. Next week a banquet will be given for all the players.

EVERYBODY WANTS THE CELEBRATION

COMMITTEES AT WORK REPORT
RAPID PROGRESS IN WORK.

ENTHUSIASM IS PARMOUNT

General Opinion Is That There Never
Has Been Such a Celebration Planned as This Year's.

The elephant goes round and round
The Band begins to play.
The boys around the Monkeys' cage
Had better get out of the way.

When the great and glorious Fourth really arrives Janesville will be ready for it. They will be on hand, bands, decorations, parades, fireworks and enthusiasm. Not the bottled kind, but the genuine old scream-eagle sort, that demonstrates that the Nation's birthday is no slight affair.

Working Hard
Of course, the hardest working of all the committees is the finance.

They are the burden-bearers of the whole affair. Upon their efforts depend the success or failure of the day.
They are the advance corps, the scouts who locate the enemy, rush in and drive them from their strongholds before the reserves come up.
Thus far they have been very successful, but they have by no means finished their work. These brave bands of patriots are still fighting on the firing line, getting twenty-five dollars here, one there, to add to the growing fund of the celebration. Everyone seems in hearty accord with the idea of a celebration, but all must come down handsomely if it is to be a success.

Colonel Nonesuch

The Nonesuch Brothers claim that their end of the day's features will be bigger and better, larger and grander, more plentiful and laughable, with handsomer and more elaborate displays, more people and more authority, more music and, to the sublime, more diversified and extravagant, so much and so decorous, in fact, it can't be beat anywhere by any show on earth, by any aggregation of showmen, any past masters of the art of circuses. Bannum never dreamed of the glories to be depicted. Adam Forepaugh would turn in his grave could he see the parade. Old Van Amberg, the man who went into the lion's cage and put his head in the lion's mouth, would turn green with envy. The Bannum and Bailey Shows without their parade, the Sells-For-paugh, the Ringling Bros., the Hagenbeck-Wallace, the Buffalo Bill shows, are back numbers if Colonel Nonsuch waits to be believed.

Then the Music

Just imagine five bands, the best five in Southern Wisconsin, tooting away all day, and two of them keeping it up all evening. This in itself is a feature. Then there is "Troy Q."
of the cavalry, Battery A, Montana cavalry, and the Wild West Agriculture from across the Creek. Million-dollar beauties, peroxide blondes with complexions at so much per box, three parades—morning, afternoon and evening, trick-bicycle riders, gaily decorated streets, everyone happy, everything free except what you buy, no charge for standing room at any of the parades. For when Janesville does anything, they do it well and the people who have visited the city in past years when the corporation celebrated are all coming again. Crowds may be expected and not only expected but will be on hand bag and baggage, horn and happiness, and the Fourth will be a day long to be remembered.

The Floats

However grand the preparations are there is always room for one more. The chairman of the civic parade, Colonel Nonesuch, and Dr. Edden, who has charge of the bucking autos, all would like more recruits. Do not be afraid to tell what you will do.
Hand in your name and then the committee can arrange affairs in a more orderly manner. Teamsters and horse-owners, who are willing to contribute their teams and services, will be welcomed.

The Circus Parade July 4th.

There are probably many people interested in making the Nonesuch Bros.
Circus a big success. July 4th, and it will be impossible for the committee to see them personally. Every person who wishes to enter the parade or provide a feature for the event is requested to call or drop a line to the chairman of the committee, Dr. W.
Watt, Hayes Block, Janesville.

Stockholders' Meeting.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Merchants & Mechanics' Savings Bank of Janesville, Wisconsin, will be held at the bank on Tuesday, July 9th, 1907, at 4:30 p. m., for the election of directors and for the transaction of any other business that may properly come before the meeting.

W. S. JEFFRIS, President.
S. M. SMITH, Cashier.

LOCAL LACONICS.

Spectacular Runaway: A team of horses belonging to the Russell transfer line and hauling a large dray figured in a spectacular runaway on Milwaukee street at half-past twelve this noon. One animal tripped, the other pitched over it and the wagon ran up onto them so that it had to be moved before the horses could be picked up.
Neither was seriously hurt. The colts which have heretofore been used exclusively in the hack service, were hitched onto the platform wagon in response to a hurry order. "Click!"
Davis was driving.

F. & A. M.: Special communication of Janesville Lodge No. 53, F. &
A. M., at Masonic Temple next Monday evening. Work in E. A.
Presented With Automatic Gun: Local friends have presented Officer William Mason with a fine Colt automatic revolver and leather holster.
The weapon will discharge nine 32-calibre bullets in the space of five seconds and is the most modern thing in firearms.

HOW TO BUILD A REAL GOOD ROAD

GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL TRAVELS
OVER FIFTY-SIX MILES
FRIDAY.

LANCASTER IS ENTHUSIASTIC

Says Rock County Resembles the Famous Blue Grass Regions of Kentucky.

Accompanied by H. F. Bliss and District Attorney John L. Fisher, an automobile chartered by The Gazette, Samuel C. Lancaster yesterday traveled over fifty-six miles of the Rock county roads, inspecting the conditions and the possibilities of the improvement by good methodical methods. The gravel pit of the Knickerbocker plant near the city was visited and then the trip through the districts that had already made appropriation for road improvement was taken. Mr. Lancaster is enthusiastic. He believes that the building of good roads will greatly enhance the value of the farm property and that Rock county, which he likens to the famous Blue Grass country of Kentucky, will have an era of prosperity that will be unrivaled.

Mr. Lancaster is an expert in his line of work. He thoroughly understands every phase of road building and his advice to the prospective makers of good roads in Rock county is valuable, to say the least. In the Knickerbocker gravel pit he found the ideal material for good macadam roads. He waxed eloquent in describing what could be accomplished with this material. This morning Mr.
Hotchkiss, the Wisconsin Good Roads representative who has headquarters in Madison joined Mr. Lancaster and with Mr. Fisher is covering other parts of the county they did not reach yesterday.

The party yesterday visited Be-lois, inspected roads in its immediate vicinity, went to Clinton, saw Cham-man Jones of the town board of that community and inspected other roads, then back to Janesville by way of Emerald Grove. They passed through the towns of La Prairie, Turtle, Beloit, Clinton, and Bradford on their long drive. Mr. Lancaster said of his trip:

"The fifty-six mile drive yesterday afternoon over some of the roads in the southern part of the county was greatly enjoyed and afforded me an opportunity of studying your conditions, so that I might speak to you more intelligently this afternoon on 'The Construction of Improved Roads and Their Benefit,' as applied to this particular locality."

"I have visited many states and am fairly familiar with conditions in most of them. You have a magnificent farming country and your great need is for better country roads, which will make possible the development of rural life to the highest degree."

"One of your citizens whom I met said: 'Yes, this country of ours deserves better roads,' and indeed it does. You can have them; too! Without working a hardship on anyone if you will first do some thinking; then begin to plan and organize so as to have some system in building your roads; then you can begin to execute these plans and your work will tell for great good to this community."

"As long as you can pursue the old policy of executing your work without any fixed plan, each overseer doing the work in his town according to his ideas of the case, often neglecting all principles of correct road construction you may expect only poor returns and the greater part of your money will be wasted."

"Road building is an art. It doubtless seems to be an easy matter to grade up a road; to spread on the stone to the required depth; then turn the travel on and have a well built road. But experience and observation teach a different lesson."

"The best results are obtained only where the work is done under the supervision of men trained to the work, who are honest and capable."

"It is necessary to have the confidence and hearty cooperation of the people, too. If the work is done in the best way and at a minimum cost."

"This can only be had by conducting public business on business principles—having a uniform system of accounting and doing the work in the best way possible with the materials available."

William Dillon
The remains of the late William Dillon were taken from the Dr. Ryan & Son undertaking rooms this morning and interred in Oak Hill cemetery. But a brief funeral service was held at the grave. Rev. J. H. Tippet officiating.

FEARS THAT WIFE HAS DESERTED HIM

W. A. Huntley Is Very Much Worried
Over Her Mysterious Departure
on June 4.

W. A. Huntley, who is employed by George Rogers as a painter and who resides at No. 4 Chatham street, is much worried concerning the possible whereabouts of his wife and his thirteen-year-old son. Ora, who left the city last week Tuesday with a woman named Mrs. Beach, giving him but meager details regarding their plans and destination. On the Wednesday following he received a postal from Milwaukee, giving no address nor further particulars but stating that Mrs. Beach had gone to work at a summer resort in Indiana. After that he heard no more and becoming alarmed went to Milwaukee to search for them. He found that they had made application for lodging at the Home for Friendless Women, upon their arrival in the metropolis, but had been refused on account of the boy. Beyond that, he could find no trace of them. Mrs. Huntley's movements have from the beginning been such as to arouse vague apprehensions on the part of her husband. She obtained his reluctant consent to spend the summer working at some summer resort, with the understanding that she was to leave the boy with him, but sometime during the night before her departure she took the lad's clothes away from the house, so he says, and when Huntley made inquiry at the depot he found that the boy had gone with her. "I can't understand it," says the perplexed man.
"She has been as good a woman as anybody I ever had. I think much of her. I have always done right—am no drinking man and do not fool away the money I earn—and we have never had any disagreement."

IS YOUR CANDIDATE GETTING ENOUGH VOTES?

You Should Not Fail To Give Your Friend Who Wants To Win One Of The Diamonds Or Other Prizes, All The Votes You Can—He Or She Will Need Them.

RULES AND REGULATIONS GIVEN

You Should Make It Your Particular Business To See How Many Of Your Friends Or Lodge Brothers You Can Pledge To Support Your Candidate. Don't Put It Off Until Tomorrow.

Any candidate desiring a subscription book from which to issue receipts for money which may be given them by their friends, can have them upon request at this office.

The voting was very spirited yesterday and as a result some 65 candidates received support. It is the desire of The Daily Gazette to give every one an equal chance to vote in the popular diamond contest.

If you are an old subscriber paying up an account of long standing you will be given the votes for the asking, just as cheerfully as if you were a new subscriber.

As an inducement to get new names on our subscription books we offer a double vote to them.

Everyone should secure The Daily Gazette's subscription certificates for votes.

Your friends, the candidates, can use them to good advantage. One additional certificate might secure for some deserving friend a splendid diamond or vacation trip.

If the persons you would like best to see win the diamonds have not as yet been nominated you should nominate them soon—today is the best. Don't delay—every day counts. Many more nominations are looked for next week. Do the best you can. No one can do more, but do it, and do it now.

RULES GOVERNING GAZETTE CONTEST

THE DISTRICTS.

Candidates compete only with those residing in their own district, but are privileged to secure support and work for votes in any district.

District No. 1—Includes all territory lying within the corporate limits of the city of Janesville.

District No. 2—Includes all territory lying out side the city of Janesville in the north half of Rock county.

District No. 3—Includes all territory lying outside the city of Janesville in the south half of Rock county.

WHERE THE PRIZES WILL GO AND WHAT THEY ARE.

In District No. 1—One handsome Diamond Ring to the lady receiving the highest vote and a fine Solid Gold Watch to the lady receiving the second highest vote. One handsome Diamond Ring to the gentleman receiving the highest vote and a fine Solid Gold Watch to the gentleman receiving the second highest vote. Two 20-year Gold Watches as third prizes.

In District No. 2—One beautiful Diamond, as a first prize, mounted either in a lady's or gentleman's ring, and a valuable Solid Gold Watch (lady's or gentleman's), as a second prize, to the lady or gentleman receiving the first and second highest vote respectively. One 20-year Gold Watch as third prize.

In District No. 3—Same as given in district No. 2.

The Grand Prize—To the winner of a first prize receiving the highest vote in the entire contest will be awarded a trip for self and one companion, expenses paid, by rail to Green Bay and from there by boat to the Soo and return.

Special Prize—To the candidate turning in the largest number of new subscribers for six months or over by the 15th of July at 8 o'clock P. M. will be given two trips with expenses paid to Charlevoix, by way of Chicago and Lake Michigan. This "special prize," however, can not be won by the one winning the trips to the "Soo." In case the winner of the "Soo" trips should also send in the most new subscribers, the special prize will go to the one sending in the second largest number of new subscribers.

RULES AND REGULATIONS.

Candidates in District No. 1 must be members of a church, lodge, club, labor, literary or social organization holding meetings in the city of Janesville.

Candidates in Districts No. 2 and 3 are not required to belong to any organization, may be of either sex, but must be at least 16 years old.

The voting will be by ballots clipped from The Daily Gazette and by voting certificates issued with subscriptions for The Daily Gazette.

Each nomination ballot clipped from the paper will count five votes for the lady or gentleman named thereon when received at the office before the date of expiration given on the ballot.

At the close of the balloting the returns will be canvassed by a committee of well-known business men from the various districts whose standing in the community is unquestioned.

The balloting will begin with the issue of June 4th and close at 8 o'clock p. m. July 22nd, 1907.

No employee of The Gazette or member of any employee's family will be eligible as a candidate.

The decision of the contest committee in making awards of prizes shall be final and conclusive.

All contestants in accepting nominations must agree to the above rules and regulations.

In the event of a tie between candidates for any of the prizes, the value of such will be equally divided between them, or a trophy of the same character and value as that offered will be awarded to each.

Rules and regulations will be published Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays, hereafter.

Certificates for either a lady or gentleman contestant will be issued with receipts for subscriptions as follows:

THE PRINCESS VELOPES

(COPYRIGHT 1905
BOBBY MERRILL ©)

By HAROLD MACGRATH
AUTHOR OF "THE PRINCE OF THE BOX"
"HEARTS AND MASKS," ETC.

I saw the prince once. I do not blame the Princess Hildegarde for her rebellion. The prince was not only old; he was fat and ugly, with little, elephantine eyes that were always veiled, restless and full of mischief. He might have made a good father, but I have nothing to prove this. Those bottles of sparkling Moselle which he failed to dispose of to the American trade he gave to his brother in Barscheit, or drank himself. He was 58 years old.

A nephew, three times removed, was waiting for the day when he should waddle around in the prince's shoes. He was a lieutenant in the duke's body-guard, a quick-tempered, heady chap. Well, he never waddled around in his uncle's shoes, for he never got the chance.

I hadn't been in Barscheit a week before I heard a great deal about the princess. She was a famous horse-woman. This made me extremely anxious to meet her. Yet for nearly six months I never even got so much as a glimpse of her. Half of the six months she was traveling through Austria, and the other half she kept out of my way—not intentionally; she knew nothing of my existence; simply, she moved us about blindly. At court she was invariably indisposed, and at the first court ball she retired before I arrived. I got up at all times, galloped over all roads, but never did I see her. She rode alone, too, part of the time.

The one picture of her which I was lucky enough to see had been taken when she was six, and meant nothing to me in the way of identification. For all I knew I might have passed her on the road. She became to me the Princess in the Invisible Cloak, passing me often and doubtless deriding my efforts to discern her. My curiosity became alarming; I couldn't sleep for the thought of her. Finally we met, but the meeting was a great surprise to us both. This meeting happened during the great hubbub of which I have just written; and at the same time, I met another who had great weight in my future affairs.

The princess and I became rather well acquainted. I was not a gentleman, according to her code, but, in the historic words of the drug clerk, I was something just as good. She honored me with a frank, disinterested friendship, which still exists. I have yet among my fading souvenirs of diplomatic service half a dozen notes commanding me to get up at dawn and ride around the lakes, something like 16 miles. She was almost as reckless a rider as myself. She was truly a famous rider, and a woman who sits well on a horse can never be taught but graceful. She was, in fact, youthful and charming, with the most magnificent black eyes I ever beheld in a Teutonic noble; witty, besides, and a songstress of no ordinary talent. If I had been in love with her—which I solemnly vow I was not—I should have called her beautiful and exhausted my store of complimentary adjectives.

The basic cause of all this turmoil, about which I am to spin my narrative, lay in her education. I hold that a German princess should never be educated save as a German. By this I mean to convey that her education should not go beyond German literature, German history, German veneration of laws, German manners and German passivity and docility. The Princess Hildegarde had been educated in England and France, which simplifies everything, or, I should say, to be exact, complicates everything.

She possessed a healthy contempt for that what-d'ye-call-it that hedges in a king. Having mingled with English-speaking people, she returned to her native land, her brain filled with the importance of feminine liberty of thought and action. Hence, she became the bramble that prodded the grand duke whichever way he turned. His days were filled with horrors, his nights with mares which did not have box-stalls in his stables.

Never could he anticipate her in anything. On that day he placed guards around the palace she wrote verses or read modern fiction; the moment he relaxed his vigilance she was away on some heartrending escapade. Didn't she scandalize the nobility by dressing up a hussar and riding her famous black Mecklenburg cross-country? Hadn't she flouted outrageously with the French attaché and deliberately turned her back on the Russian minister, at the very moment, too, when negotiations were going on between Russia and Barscheit relative to a small piece of land in the Balkans? And, most terrible of all to relate, hadn't she ridden a shining bicycle up the Königsstrasse, in broad daylight, and in bifurcated skirts, besides? I shall never forget the indignation of the press at the time of this last escapade, the stroke of apoplexy which threatened the duke, and the room with the barred window which the princess occupied one whole week.

They burned the offensive bicycle in the courtyard of the palace, ceremoniously, too, and the princess had witnessed this solemn auto da fe from her barred window. It is no strain upon the imagination to conjure up the picture of her fine rage, her threatening hands, her compressed lips, her tearless, flashing eyes, as she saw her beautiful new wheel writhe and twist on the blazing fagots. But what the duke was a poor duke to do with a niece like this?

For a time I feared that the United States and the Grand Duchy of Barscheit would sever diplomatic relations. The bicycle was, unfortunately, of American make, and the manufacturer wrote to me personally that they considered themselves grossly insulted over the action of the duke. Diplomatic notes were exchanged, and I finally prevailed upon the duke to state that he held the wheel harmless and that his anger had been directed solely against his niece. This letter was duly forwarded to the manufacturers, who, after the manner of their kind, carefully altered the phrasing and used it in their magazine advertisements. They were so far appeased that they offered me my selection from the private stock. Happily the duke never rode anything but the Fliegende Blatter and Jugend, and thus war was averted.

Later an automobile agent visited the town—at the secret bidding of her highness—but he was so unceremoniously hustled over the frontier that his teeth must have rattled like a dancer's castanets. It was a great country for expeditionness, as you will find, if you do me the honor to follow me to the end.

So the grand duke swore that his niece should wed Doppelkinn, and the princess vowed that she would not. The man who had charge of my horses said that one of the palace malds had recounted to him a dialogue which had taken place between the duke and his niece. As I was anxious to be off on the road I was compelled to listen to his gossip.

The Grand Duke—In two months' time you shall wed the Prince of Doppelkinn.

The Princess—What! that old red-rose? Never! I shall marry only where I love.

The Grand Duke—Only where you love! (Sneers.) One would think, to hear you talk, that you were capable of loving something.

The Princess—You have yet to learn. I warn you not to force me. I promise to do something scandalous. I will marry one of the people—a man.

The Grand Duke—Bah! (Sneers softly on his way to the stables.)

But the princess had in her mind a plan which, had it gone through safely, would have added many gray hairs to the duke's scanty collection. It was a mighty ingenious plan, too, for a woman to figure out.

In his attitude toward the girl the duke stood alone. Behind his back his ministers wore out their shoes in waiting on the caprices of the girl, while the grand duchess, half-blind and half-deaf, openly worshipped her willful but wholly adorable niece, and abetted her in all her escapades. So far as the populace was concerned, she was the daughter of the favorite son, dead these 18 years, and that was enough for them. Whatever she did was right and proper. But the hard-headed duke had the power to say what should be what, and he willed it that the Princess Hildegarde should marry his old comrade in arms, the Prince of Doppelkinn.

CHAPTER II.

As I have already remarked, I used frequently to take long rides into the country, and sometimes I did not return till the following day. My clerk was always on duty, and the work never appeared to make him round-shouldered.

I had ridden horses for years, but to throw a leg over a good mount was to me one of the greatest pleasures in the world. I delighted in stopping at the old feudal inns, of studying the stolid German peasant, of drinking from steins uncracked these hundred years, of inspecting ancient armor and gathering trifling romances attached thereto. And often I have had the courage to stop at some quaint, crumbling Schloss or castle and ask for a night's lodging for myself and horse. "Seldom," if ever, did I meet with a refusal.

I possessed the whimsical habit of picking out strange roads and riding on till night swooped down from the snow-capped mountains. I had a bit of poetry in my system that had never been completely worked out, and I was always imagining that at the very next Schloss or inn I was to hit upon some "delectable" adventure. I was only 28, and inordinately fond of my Dumas.

I rode in gray whipcord breeches, tan boots, a blue serge coat, white stock, and never a hat or cap till the snow blew. I used to laugh when the peasants asked me to lend me a cap or to run back and find the one I had presumably lost.

One night the delectable adventure for which I was always seeking came my way, and I was wholly unprepared for it.

I had taken the south highway, that which seeks the valley beyond the lake. The moonlight lay misty upon everything; on the far-off lake, on the great upheavals of stone and glacier above me, on the long white road that stretched out before me, ribbon-wide. High up the snow on the mountains resembled huge opals set in amethyst. That is to say, I had been in the saddle some six hours. "Nobody but a king's messenger will ride a horse more than five miles an hour. I cast about for a place to spend the night. There was no tavern in sight, and the hovel I had passed during the last hour offered no shelter for my horse. Suddenly, around a bend in the road, I saw the haven I was seeking. It was a rambling, tottering old castle, standing in the center of a cluster of firs, and the tiles of the roofs and the ivy of the towers were shining silver with the heavy fall of dew.

Lady Chloe sniffed her kind, whinnied, and broke into a trot. She knew, sooner than I that there was life beyond the turn. We rode up to the gate, and I dismounted and stretched myself. I tried the gate. The lock hung loose, like a paralytic hand. Evidently those inside had nothing to fear from those outside. I grasped an iron bar and pushed in the gate. Chloe following knowingly at my heels. I could feel the crumbling rust on my gloves. Chloe whinnied again, and there came an answering whinny from somewhere in the rear of the castle. Somebody must be inside, I reasoned.

There were lights in the left wing, but this part of the castle was surrounded by an empty moat, damp and weedy. This was not to be entered save by a ladder. There was a great central door, however, which had a modern appearance. The approach was a broad gravelled walk. I tied Lady Chloe to a tree, knotted the bridle-reins above her neck to prevent her from putting her restless feet into them, and proceeded toward the door.

"I Beheld Two Faces in Profile, as it Were."

Of all the nights this was the one on which my usually lively imagination reposed. I was hungry and tired, and I dare say my little mare was. I wasn't looking for an adventure; I didn't want any adventure; I wanted nothing in the world but a meal and a bed. But for the chill of the night air—the breath of the mountain is cold at night—I should have been perfectly willing to sleep in the open. Down drawbridge, up portcullis!

I boldly climbed the steps and groped around for the knocker. It was broken and useless, like the lock on the gate. And never a bell could I find. I swore softly and became impatient. People in Barscheit did not usually live in this slovenly fashion. What sort of place was this?

Nothing so Good in Summer.

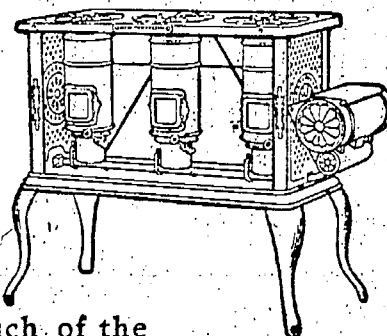

Nothing so healthful and satisfying in Summer as Shredded Wheat combined with fresh fruits or creamed vegetables. If you want a dish that is deliciously appetizing and sustaining, warm a Shredded Wheat Biscuit in the oven till it is crisp, crush a hollow in the top and fill it with berries, sliced pineapple, bananas or peaches, and serve with cream and sugar. Contains more real nutriment than meat or eggs.

For breakfast heat the Biscuit in oven to restore crispness, pour hot or cold milk over it, add a little cream and a little salt; or, sweeten to taste. Shredded Wheat is delicious and wholesome for any meal in combination with fresh or preserved fruits. At your grocers.

THE USES OF THE WANT ADS.

Do you realize the scope of classified advertising in The Gazette's "Want" columns?

From "Boarders Wanted" to "Real Estate For Sale," and from "Religious Notices" to "Help—Solicitors and Salesmen"—in fact, the whole range of human desires and necessities is compassed in the classified columns.

If you've a house for sale or rent—if you want a domestic—if you're out of a position—if you are seeking investment opportunities—if you want to advertise your business at small cost—if you want to buy or sell anything that anyone else is likely to bargain for or purchase—if you want anything from a bird to an automobile—

You can get in touch with thousands of readers of The Gazette by inserting a little Want Ad. in the classified columns.

There is no surer medium—there is no better time to try it than right now.

THE WATCH CAME BACK.

Luck of a Man Who Met a Pickpocket in Park Row.

"Having his watch stolen from him and offered for sale back to him in an hour was what happened to a friend of mine the other day when crowds gathered at the newspaper bulletin boards waiting for news of the Thaw jury," said a citizen to a New York Sun reporter. "It happened this way: An old friend of mine was standing among others waiting for news of the Thaw jury when suddenly he felt a twitch at his watch pocket and his watch was gone. Not being sure of his ground he kept his loss to himself and walked away from the crowd."

"After transacting a little business in the neighborhood he turned toward home. Remembering that he needed a drink he stepped into a saloon."

"He was in the midst of his story, telling the sympathetic bartender of his experience, with his back to the door, when a voice back of him broke into the conversation, ordered a drink and asked the drink-mixer if he had any use for a watch, mentioning the fact that there was one to be had cheap."

"The bartender, having my friend in mind, asked to see the watch and turned it over to my friend, who immediately recognized it as his. Turning around he inquired how much he asked for the timepiece. The thief recognized his late victim and made a bolt for the door, taking good care to leave the watch behind."

"Now being of a peaceful disposition my friend let the matter go at that. Can you beat it?"

Watch Jewels Not Costly.

A jeweler, no matter how dishonest, would not steal the jewels in a watch, for they are valueless; they cost only ten cents apiece. In antique watches the jewels were often costly. In modern watches they are never worth more than $15 a gross.

GREAT RACE STABLE.

James R. Keene, Eastern Millionaire, Is Winning Big Prizes.

SUPERMAN AND PETER PAN.

This Stable Heads Winners In East at Present; Having Captured More Than Twenty Races, Worth About $72,000. Many Two-year-olds.

With the eastern turf season almost at its beginning, the racing on the metropolitan tracks now only coming to the end of the ninth week of the sport, the stable of James R. Keene has taken a commanding lead on the winning list and to date has earned a total of $72,000, with over twenty races won by the horses, carrying the white with blue spots.

The stable, made up this season in its entirety of horses bred under the supervision of Major Daingerfield on Mr. Keene's Castleton farm at Lexington, Ky., has led the winning list for the past several years, and on the results achieved so far this season will give all the other great stables a hard struggle to equal or pass it.

The most noted performers of the Keene stable so far this season are Peter Pan, winner of the $25,000 Belmont stakes on Memorial day, and Superman, winner of the $25,000 Brooklyn handicap the week before, both sons of the fast horse Commando, a great winner for the Keene jacket in his short career on the turf and himself a son of the greatest winner in the history of the American turf, Mr. Keene's champion of 1893, Domino.

The stable started the season with forty-nine horses named as in training under the care of James Rowe, the number including twenty-nine two-year-olds, the get of the Keene stallions Disguise, Voter, Kingston, Ben Brush and Commando, the latter now dead.

The first winner for the establishment this season was the two-year-old filly Masks and Faces early in the Aqueduct (New York) meeting. Since then the stable has sent out seven two-year-old winners out of eleven races, while with older horses three sons of Commando—Peter Pan, Superman and

The Belmont stakes, won by Mr. Keene's Peter Pan, have been raced for continuously for forty years. The stakes are worth $25,000, of which sum $21,000 and a piece of silver plate worth $1,000, donated by August Belmont, go to the winner.

Since 1900 some great horses have won this race. Ildrom won it in that year. Since then the winners each season have been Commando, Masterman, Africander, Debit, Tanya and Burgomaster.

It will be seen from this list that James R. Keene has had two winners in the past—Commando and Debit. Harry Payne Whitney two, Tanya and Burgomaster, and August Belmont one, Masterman.

Gratuitous Advice to Alphonso Sheborgan Journal: Queen Victoria carried her baby to church in her arms, yesterday. The King should buy her a perambulator.
